Nic Haralambous, Misguided or stupid?

Now funny I have actually had dealings with this one. He wanted to interview me for a podcast. We set up an appointment. Nic never pitched. Not an apology, nor any communication since. His lack of respect is astounding. Nic, one of the first lessons you need to learn is, when you can't make an appointment you either reschedule in advance or let the busy person who has probably made time in his schedule for you know that something has come up. Common courtesy never hurts.

Next I stood up and told him that he was being a little silly when he wanted to stop people from self promoting their websites. In his mind self promotion is spam and must be halted. He organised a little gang of thugs on MUTI and started marking all self promoted sites as spam. I objected strongly. The management of MUTI have seemingly banned my site so I can't even post a response to all these unwarranted attacks. This smacks of censorship to me.

Muti gets to lose however. I am removing the submit to MUTI link from all sites. We will use sites like Dugg Reddit and the 2 - 3000 more that are available and have management that are more advanced life forms.

Nice! I'm sure your clients and prospective clients will appreciate the type of language you've used in the past few days.

Testimonials

I took the plunge and bought one of Guy's R274 sites mainly to tinker on the web, without destorying my business site. Besides, at that price, what have I got to lose. Setting up a website will always have teething problems, but the quality of information that is supplied to assist you along the way is excellent. I have bombarded Guy and Melanie with a number of queries/cries for assistance via e-mail and have always received an unexpectedly prompt reply (particularly outside office hours!) The turoirals on generating more traffic to your site, will no doubt not only benefit my R274 site, but also my businesses website as a result. Please feel free to visit my site www.quaser.co.za but bear in mind that it is currently "work in progress" as I work through Guy's tutorials.

I've been in regular contact with Guy over the past couple of weeks, as we are/were doing work for one another. Guy is honest and straightforward and does not make false promises. In business, that is rare and extremely valuable. I'm very glad I've met him.
